

WESTMINSTER COLLEGE

HONORS PROGRAM

You can make history in 2012-13

Sir Winston Churchill made history here in 1946 with his famous “Iron Curtain” speech. You can make history here your first day on campus by applying to be a Westminster College Honors Program Scholar. For the first time in the over 160 year history of Westminster College, incoming freshmen and transfer students have the opportunity to study in a prestigious new Honors Program. The new Westminster College Honors Program will be exciting for high achieving students.

Students will have the opportunity to take fun and stimulating courses with other high achieving students in the new Honors Program at Westminster. Students will have one-on-one attention from professors in studying some of life’s most interesting topics. Students will have special opportunities to work and travel together in both academic and social events that will stimulate, excite, and inspire.

From in-depth seminar style courses to group-related activities tied to exploring careers, graduate school, and professional schools, bright and energetic students looking for a challenge above and beyond the normal college experience will want to join this program.

The program will culminate in highly individualized and specialized graduate school-type research or individual projects that will make a difference in the community or in public presentations at major professional conferences. Graduating with an Honors Program designation from Westminster via an “Honors Thesis” or “Honors Project” will yield personal growth, increase your chances for top graduate and professional schools, and help you land jobs with some of the nation and region’s best organizations.

If you are an elite student looking for an inspiring experience, check out the Westminster College Honors Program and you may make history in 2012-13. Yes, Churchill made history here in 1946 and you can, too--in our inaugural Honors Program class in Fall 2012!
